INTRODUCES AN INDIAN WAR BILL

Bill Appropriating One Million Dollars for the Mississippi River Earnestly Opposed—Congressional Chit Chat

Meeting of Inspectors of Steam Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—The annual meeting of the [illegible] of supervising inspectors of steam vessels [illegible] to-day, James A Dumont supervising inspector general in the chair. John Fehrell [illegible] elected secretary for the ensuing year. [illegible] are present from the districts of St Louis, Memphis, Cincinnati, Detroit, Buffalo and [illegible]. Under the rule of the board steel [illegible] prior to February 1872 were allowed [illegible] pressure upon the assumed tensile strength [illegible] material with which the boilers are made of [illegible]. This rule was amended to-day by [illegible] 7000 pounds and inserting "60,000 [illegible] such boilers will be allowed a steam [illegible] based on the material's tensile strength of [illegible] pounds.

The National Bankrupt Association.

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—The national convention of commercial bodies, to consider the question of enactment of a uniform and equitable bankrupt law [illegible]. Eighty-five commercial bodies, representing twenty-eight states and three national associations, were represented. A B Martin of New [illegible] called the convention to order. The convention was permanently organized by the election of [illegible] of the Merchants Exchange of St Louis, [illegible] and George Moore Smith of New York.

Time Extended.

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—The commissioner of internal revenue, in order to afford further facilities [illegible] fermented liquors for export, has decided [illegible] to forty-eight hours the time which [illegible] liquors may be bottled after inspection [illegible] marking of the original stamped packages [illegible] inspector.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—California, generally fair [illegible] north Pacific coast, fair weather, followed [illegible] rains.

House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.

[illegible] introduced a bill for the improvement of [illegible] canal and maintaining the same free to the commerce of the United States. It appropriates [illegible] annually for the purpose referred.

[illegible] from the committee on expenditures in the department of justice, reported a resolution [illegible] the secretary of the treasury for a state[ment of] the gross and the net earnings per annum [of] the United States marshals, attorneys and clerks [illegible] with the fiscal year 1873 to 1883. Adopted.

[illegible] offered a resolution requesting the secretary of war to report on the necessity of making an [illegible] appropriation for continuing the work on [illegible] river and harbor improvements until the [illegible] of the next fiscal year are available.

[illegible] offered a resolution calling on the secretary of state for information as to how many foreign [illegible] consuls and agents have been absent from [illegible] since January 1, 1882, and whether salary [illegible] during their absence. Referred.

[illegible] introduced a joint resolution authorizing the secretary of war to permit Antonio Barrio of [illegible] and Jose Davila of Nicaragua to receive instruction at the West Point military academy without expense and suspending in their case [the] provision of the law requiring military service.

[illegible] introduced a bill authorizing the construction of a ship canal around Niagara Falls. Referred.

[illegible] offered a resolution instructing the committee on ways and means to inquire into the expediency of abolishing or consolidating customs [and] internal revenue districts. Referred.

[illegible], from the committee on post offices and post roads, reported a bill providing for the more [illegible] delivery of letters at delivery offices, placed [on] the calendar.

The house went into committee of the whole, Cox of New York in the chair, on the senate bill appropriating $1,000,000 for continuing the improvement of the Mississippi river.

After an extended discussion the rejection of several amendments chiefly aimed at confining the expenditure of the proposed appropriation to Plum [Point] and Lake Providence, except enough to keep [the] works in repair, the committee rose and [pend]ing a motion to refer the bill and amendments to the committee on rivers and harbors the house adjourned.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.

[illegible] passed reported from the committee on [public] lands restoring to the public domain land [granted] the Iron Mountain railroad company [to] aid in the line contemplated.

[illegible] of New York presented a memorial from the [comm]ittee of the national stock convention held at [illegible] on the subject of European discrimination [agai]nst American cattle and meats. In connection [with] the memorial Miller presented a bill entitled [a] bill to provide means for suppressing and extirpating pleuro-pneumonia and other contagious diseases in domestic animals," which, he said, embodied the views of the cattle breeders' convention, and the second time and referred to the committee on agriculture.

[illegible], by request, submitted a joint resolution [propos]ing an amendment to the constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating [liquor]s in the United States. Referred.

[illegible] submitted an amendment to the resolution of [illegible] relating to European exclusion of American [pork]. The amendment is as follows: And the [committ]ee on foreign relations is further instructed [to inquire] what discriminations are made against exports from the United States by the tariff laws of the several countries of Europe and America, especially France, Germany, Mexico and Brazil, by reason of commercial or other special treaties with [favo]red nations and report the causes which [of] such discriminations, the efforts, if any, made to remove them, and what legislation is necessary to place the United States on an equal footing with the favored nations. This legislation, however, not [to delay] the work of the committee in the first part of the inquiry. Ordered printed.

After an executive session the senate adjourned.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS IN THE CAPITOL

[On] consideration of the joint rules by the [senate] to-day when the rule forbidding the sale of [liquor] in the capitol was reached, Bayard moved to [insert] the words "or malt" so as to except malt [liquors] from exclusion.

[illegible] said he had seen a restaurant of one of the [houses] become an open notorious low miserable [illegible]. He had seen men with pantaloons inside [their] boots and coarse house on a landing at the bar [of the] restaurant of one of the houses of congress [drinking] miserable whisky out of a cup.

"[What] cup?" inquired a member.

"[A] tin," said Frye, "a crockery cup. And I have [seen] whisky ordered again and again and called [for] and brought and served in a cup and saucer [illegible] called for the same and have seen the adoption [of] this amendment, but the difference was adjusted without a vote by striking out the words [illegible] and malt, and inserting the word "intoxicating."

CONGRESSIONAL CHIT CHAT.

THE PROPOSED TREATY WITH MEXICO

[NEW] YORK, Jan 16.—[Special.]—A Washington [special] reiterates the charges against the promoters [of the] Mexican treaty and says it is difficult to see [how] Miller of California, who is urging more rigid [enforcement] of the anti-Chinese law, should so earnestly [support the] treaty. It is intended to import Chinese to [work the] lands in Mexico. "The treaty is not a [commercial] treaty, it is a job. If ratified [it will be] worth $50,000,000 to its promoters in the [next ten] years. Advocates of the treaty, although [illegible] intention to promote the sugar interest [illegible], are unwilling to have the proposition [illegible] sugar stricken from the treaty. The [illegible] Claus Spreckles has excited the cupidity of [illegible] and speculators in the east. These speculators are not confined to Wall street. There are [others] in Mexico, chiefly Germans, who will [have a] heavy share in these gains. The parties who [illegible] will be the planters of Louisiana and the [states] adjacent to Mexico, into which Chinese [will] find their way from sugar plantations.

APPARENTLY NO PROGRESS

[WASHINGTON], Jan 16.—No apparent progress was [made] on the Mexican treaty to-day, although the [senate] devoted nearly four hours to its consideration. Its friends are much less confident of ratification [to-night] than early in the week. The speech of [one] of the Louisiana senators was [believed] to be nearly unanimous in favor of ratification, [but if] present estimates of opponents of the [treaty are] trustworthy the expectation will not be [realized]. It is said that one [or two] half of the [illegible] have expressed either [illegible] opp[osition] to the treaty or strong doubts. They say it [will] find no market for southern staples as neither [illegible] produce can be exported to [Mexico] under its provisions. Payne, it is said, one [illegible] will be the chief expert to Mexico [from] the Standard Oil Company, will be the [illegible]. No disposition to kill the treaty [is] developed, whose time to recommit and its [friends] believe themselves able to secure an early [vote] at all events.

BECK'S WHISKY BILL

[WASHINGTON], Jan 16.—The bill introduced in the [senate] to-day by Senator Beck authorizes the extension of the bonded period for distilled [spirits] and provides that whenever a distillery is [idle] for twelve months and the quantity of [spirits] held in the distillery warehouse [does] not exceed 5,000 gallons, the collector may [cause] such spirits on [illegible] to be removed to [a] special warehouse.

FOR THE RELIEF OF SETTLERS

[WASHINGTON], Jan 16.—In the senate [illegible] [com]mittee on public lands Senator Van Wyck's bill [for the] relief of settlers on the public domain of [Nebraska] and Kansas was ordered reported favorably. It provides for the payment of $2 50 per acre [to persons] who took up and made their homesteads [under the] laws within the limits of the northern [illegible] land grant. With this sum claimants are [illegible] to recover from the railroad companies. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars are [appro]priated.

SPRINGER INTERVIEWED

[WASHINGTON], Jan 16.—Springer, chairman of the [committee] on expenditures in the department [of justice], said to-night that the committee would [probably] finish the investigation of the official conduct of United States deputy marshals and other officers in the department of justice within two or three weeks, when it will take up the question of expenditures in the star route cases. The statement [illegible] the committee would summon Attorney General [illegible]

Brewster and W Dorsey and [illegible] Senator Spencer was somewhat premature, although [illegible] the committee might find it necessary to summon them in order to obtain the information the committee is seeking.

THE NIAGARA SHIP CANAL BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—The bill for a ship canal around Niagara Falls provides for its construction in Niagara county, New York, to connect the navigable waters of lakes Erie and Ontario, and for locating surveys for the work within six months from the passage of the act. The location of the canal will be made by a board of five commissioners appointed by the president.

FAIR GIVES AN ENTERTAINMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—Senator Fair of Nevada gave an entertainment at Warmley's this evening to thirty friends, including several senators and representatives with their wives, and a number of citizens prominent in society here. The floral display was beautiful and the whole affair one of the most attractive of the season.

SUBMITTED TO A SUB-COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—The bill prepared by [illegible] for the relief of the Greely party, [has] been submitted for consideration to the following members of the house committee on agriculture: Hatch, Dibrell, Winans, Cullen, [illegible] and [illegible].

THE CHALMERS-MANNING SEAT

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—The house committee on elections has decided to seat neither Chalmers nor Manning on prima facie evidence. The report of the committee will be submitted to the house to-morrow, when the case will be considered on its merits.

INDIAN WARS BILL INTRODUCED BY DOLPH.

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—[Special.]—Senator Dolph of Oregon to-day introduced a bill to ascertain and adjust losses sustained by citizens of Oregon, Washington Territory, Idaho and northern California from Indian depredations in 1855, 1856, 1872, 1878 and 1878.

WASHINGTON NOTES

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—The secretaries of war and the navy appeared before the house committee on appropriations to-day on behalf of an appropriation for the Greely relief expedition. The president has sent in a [illegible].

The president has nominated Albert Stoneman of Colorado, receiver of public moneys at Prescott, Ariz.

Colonel Robert Murray's nomination for surgeon general has been confirmed.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

A Congressional Campaign Committee of One Member from each State Appointed

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—A joint republican caucus of senators and representatives was held to-night to appoint a congressional campaign committee. There were 125 members of congress present. Senator [illegible] presided. Representative Miller of Pennsylvania was secretary. In taking the chair [illegible] said the outlook for the republican party in 1884 was at this early period of the campaign better than at any time in the past fifteen years. He had every reason to believe the party will be successful if it only exercised wisdom in selecting a candidate. The following resolutions were offered by Senator Hoar:

Resolved, That the sense of this meeting is that a republican congressional campaign committee be immediately organized, consisting of one member from each state and territory having republican representatives, for the preparation and circulation of documents, addressing and publishing information to congress and other political information, and the execution of such other campaign work as may be [assign]ed to them by the committee and the republican national committee.

Resolved, That we express our sympathy and will extend co-operation in all practical ways to all southern republicans struggling to exercise the vital fundamental right of free suffrage in popular elections, and no less do we pledge earnest sympathy and assistance to all citizens of southern states who have not been republicans but are usefully standing against proscription and who are in favor of free discussion in politics, honesty in political methods, and public education of the whole people; and we recommend the prompt and cordial union of republicans with all such patriotic citizens who combined all that may redeem their states from fatal domination, false ideas and dishonest practices.

The resolutions were warmly applauded by the caucus when read and after being favorably commented on by Senators Hoar, Logan and Hawley and Representatives Hiscock and Mayo were unanimously adopted.

The members of the committee agreed upon were as follows: California, Senator Miller; Florida, H Bisbee; Illinois, G R Davis; Iowa, Senator Allison; Kansas, Thomas Ryan; Massachusetts, Senator Hoar; Minnesota, W D Washburn; Mississippi, Judge Jeffords; Nevada, Senator Jones; New Hampshire, Blair; New Jersey, Senator Sewell; New York, Hiscock; North Carolina, [illegible] O'Hara; Ohio, William McKinley Jr; Pennsylvania, J M Campbell; South Carolina, E W M Mackey; Vermont, J W Stewart; West Virginia, Nathan Goff Jr; Wisconsin, Senator Sawyer; Dakota, J B Raymond; Idaho, Theodore Singiser; New Mexico, [illegible] Luna; Washington Territory, T H Brents.

When the call was made for member of the committee from Utah, Senator Edmunds remarked: "Of course that is represented by the democrats."

Other state delegations not being fully represented the one present asked leave to present the name of a member of the committee at some future time. They were granted until to name their committeemen as soon as possible.

The secretary of the caucus was authorized to call a meeting of the committee next Monday night at the Arlington hotel. At that meeting a chairman and executive committee of seven will be appointed.

THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER.

Several Members Pronounce Against the Bill Appropriating a Million

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—During a debate in the house on the Mississippi river bill, which asks for $1,000,000, Skinner of New York said he believed that what congress had poured $50,000,000 into the Mississippi river navigation would be no better than to-day.

Warren of Ohio said if this bill were a measure of real necessity he would favor it, but while that was the ostensible purpose the real object was to appropriate money to build levees along the banks. It was well known that the river was navigable from New Orleans to Memphis and that no appropriation was required.

Dunn said that the gentleman was mistaken. There were two or three dangerous places below Memphis.

Warner continuing said the object of the bill being the building of levees [illegible] not $1,000,000 nor $100,000,000 but a plan of commission which if carried out the treasury might be emptied into the river and no good would be accomplished thereby and in the end there would be the same trouble from overflow.

White of Kentucky stated that his objection to the bill was that the house did not have before it the report of the commission. This measure was recommended by the president in a special message and for that reason the house was asked to pass the bill. During the last congress the president vetoed the river and harbor bill, and the veto was not in the interest of cheap transportation, but of railroad corporations. If he expected to control the Chicago convention the 4th of June by building up the Mississippi river, he would better look a little sharper.

Brown of Indiana opposed the bill predicting that it would be demonstrated that this Mississippi river commission plan was the most colossal waste at the expense of the [illegible]. He was in favor of an outlet system of improvement.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

THE TRIAL OF YOUNG NUTT

PITTSBURG, Jan 16.—In the Nutt trial this afternoon Mr Klaybeck, counsel for the defense, [illegible] to the court which will be conducted by the defense [illegible] the killing of Dukes, but would show what kind of the feel was committed, and that great wrongs and outrages upon the family had made the defendant unable to control his will. They would show that after a [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hereditary in the family [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

Dr Fuller testified that in 1870 he [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] physician for [illegible] years. [illegible] always believed James was mentally deficient and inclined to be [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] considered him an imbecile and an idiot.

Mrs Nutt said James was always a good boy and much attached to his parents, she considered him the reverse of being mentally strong, hearing Dukes's [illegible] and the acquittal of the former greatly excited him. Once when he came home from town much agitated he said, "Mother, don't you think the villain Dukes had the impudence to look at me and laugh?" For a week before Dukes was shot he would scream "murder" in his sleep and frequently walked the floor and [wept].

At the afternoon session Mrs Nutt was cross-examined. Nothing new was elicited save that before James left home the evening Dukes was killed she warned him to be careful. Mrs Anna Wells James, grandmother, and James Wells and Stephen Nutt, [illegible] corroborated previous witnesses regarding defendant's mental condition. Stephen explained the pistol case, showing that it was without design. The words "Don't fail Jim" brought out for the commonwealth yesterday were nothing but an injunction to attend to cutting some grass.

SUCCESSFUL BURGLARS

NEW YORK, Jan 16.—Burglars entered the shop of [illegible], manufacturers of jewelry, at [illegible] Maiden Lane last night and opening two safes, secured diamonds and jewelry valued at $[illegible]. They also opened a safe belonging to [illegible], manufacturer of jewelry, [illegible] [illegible] and at [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rings. A TERRIBLE DEATH.

Mrs Stickney of Fall River Perishes from Fire—Her Husband Dangerously Burned

FALL RIVER, Mass, Jan 16.—About 10 o'clock tonight a man passing the residence of Charles [illegible] Stickney, discovered a blaze in the upper hall. [Entering], he [illegible] [illegible] a horrible sight. Just inside the door was Stickney, his clothing in flames and his hands also singly burned. At the head of the stairway Mrs Stickney lay with her clothing burned off. It was learned that Stickney's clothing took fire in an endeavor to save his wife. A servant girl was the only other inmate and she could give no particulars regarding the cause of the fire. Stickney's condition is precarious. Stickney's one of the three Fall River defaulters sentenced at Concord and afterwards pardoned by the governor.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

The clothing of Mrs Stickney's limbs, body and face was horribly burned. The face showed that death was preceded by terrible agony. Prompt work by the neighbors and the firemen checked the flames, which did slight damage. Stickney was removed to a neighbor's house and medical aid summoned. His head was burned almost completely off and he lay in terrible agony. As near as can be ascertained Mrs Stickney had been engaged in spreading a carpet with camphor to kill moths and in some manner the naphtha ignited and in a minute the whole room was ablaze. The firemen noticed the [illegible] to Mrs Stickney's clothing and she ran to the head of the stairs where she fell exhausted. Stickney hearing her screams ran to her assistance with the result mentioned.

Northern Pacific Stocks Again Suffer Heavy Declines—Quotations

NEW YORK, Jan 16.—Governments strong. Rail[road] bonds weak and lower. Northern Pacific firsts declined to 101. State securities quiet. Speculation at the stock exchange the first hour of business was feverish and unsettled. Shares opened a fraction lower and advanced, but soon became weaker and fluctuations were unimportant. After 11 [o'clock] the [market] was characterized by more firmness, followed by a reaction of ½ a 1. Oregon and Transcontinental was heavy and depressed and broke to 26 from 1 to earlier in the day on talk of the appointment of a receiver. An effort was made to sell a block of long stock which was detected by the bears. It was also stated that stock would not be taken in loans here after. Officials assert that the company has no pressing claims falling due.

Between 1 and 2 the market became [fe]verish, weak for Western Union, Oregon and Transcontinental, Union Pacific and Northern Pacific preferred, which closed weak.

The market was depressed to-day on reports of the calling of large loans in Oregon and Transcontinental and on the disturbed condition of the affairs of the Ontario and Western company.

Compared with yesterday closing prices were down ½ a 4 per cent. Oregon Improvement dropped 5 per cent.

Dullness was the prevailing feature of the mining market. Trading was confined to six stocks and in these transactions amounted to only 2700 shares. Prices, however, were firm. Little Chief advanced to 7 on dividend and Leadville Consolidated. Belle was firm at 5½. Chrysolite 110. Maryland coal 12.

AFTERNOON REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan 16.—The money market was easy at 2 a 3½, closed offered 1½. Prime mercantile paper 5 a 6. Sterling exchange bankers' bills weaker at $4 83½. Sterling exchange, demand, $4 [illegible].

TARIFF TALK.

Great Curiosity Concerning the Bill now in Preparation by Morrison

WASHINGTON, Jan 16.—[Special.]—There has been little tariff [talk] during the past few days. Mr Hewitt's little flirtation with the British minister has raised great waggling [illegible] [illegible]. The next move on the democratic checker board will be the introduction in the house by Mr Morrison of a tariff bill which is now understood to be completed and has been since the Christmas holidays [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

There is great curiosity to know what kind of a bill the Illinois representative will present. While his views respecting the wisdom of large reductions in duties have not changed he has been obliged to bow in deference to an overwhelming sentiment among members of his own party against radical legislation and it is thought he will present a much more moderate measure than was originally expected. It is quite certain, too, that a majority of the ways and means committee will not approve any bill that proposes [to] take more than 10 per cent reduction, allowing [illegible] [illegible] for a greater decrease in only one or a few articles of general consumption. Sugar and whisky are as much [illegible] and the free sugar and the minimum tariff of existing rates say they will be satisfied with a reduction to a [illegible] per pound on all sugars under No 13 standard, and the abolition of the polariscope. Until the senate takes action on the Mexican treaty it will be difficult to determine upon all the items in his bill. If the United States is to have free sugar from Mexico Mr Morrison may think it worth while to give Louisiana a trifle higher duty on sugar, and if Mexico is to have free agricultural implements, machinery, [illegible] [illegible] it [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] British a better chance to compete with American manufacturers.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Particulars of the Sad Fate of Father Constant of Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS, Jan 16.—[Special.]—Yesterday afternoon the remains of the late Father Constant, a Catholic priest, were brought to this city. His death was the result of an accident which occurred at 4 o'clock Sunday morning, which almost involved the presbytery of the parish church in the parish of Terre Bonne. How it occurred will probably never be known. The presbytery was situated about two [miles] from the [illegible] [illegible]. One of [illegible] parishioners and last Saturday night he visited his neighboring [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] returned home. At 4 o'clock the neighbors were awakened by the roar of the flames. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hastily [illegible] in his [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] he ran to the door of the burning house but was driven back by heat and smoke. He then ran around to the window near which he saw the body of Father Constant, was elevated. He broke in the sash and dragged out the mattress and clothes which were burned. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] seen of Father Constant. Being again driven back by heat and smoke he went back to his house, saturated a blanket with water and throwing it over himself with others in the neighborhood was unhurried, [illegible] made his way into the room. In one corner, surrounded by fire and burning timbers, [illegible] lay the priest, his head bowed and resting on his hands. His parishioners made a last effort to reach him but failed. When the ruins had been thoroughly searched yesterday morning the blackened and charred bones were found.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Western Oregon.

The tide of last Tuesday morning at Yaquina bay was the highest for the winter, and about as high as they usually get.

There has been a big cave at the government rock quarry at Yaquina bay and it is estimated that it will take $3500 to open it up again.

Says the Yaquina Post: The subject of a narrow gauge railroad leading from Yaquina to Alsea bay has been broached. It would be inexpensive, the grade being an easy one and need not be more than twenty or twelve miles in length. The road would find plenty to do in transferring the splendid timber of that section to Yaquina, where it will all be needed in the coming years.

Union is said to be full of men asking for work so as to earn enough to buy a meal.

During the harvest season just closed [illegible] bushels of grain were threshed in the Long creek precinct, Grant county. This is a good showing in proportion to the acreage sown.

[illegible], the famous thoroughbred stallion belonging to [illegible] Bros, on Main Powder river, died last week. In the loss of this horse Baker county horse raisers suffer a great loss.

A little daughter of Mrs Jennie Nunes, living at Canyon City, drank a few days ago a quantity of lye. The child had a very narrow escape, but by prompt medical attention was brought through all right.

John Nutson, a female impersonator who has been engaged by the management of the dive known as [the] El [illegible] theater at Pendleton for several weeks past, was found dead in the [illegible] Saturday evening. A coroner's jury assembled [and] returned a verdict of death from an overdose of opium administered by his own hand.

Washington Territory.

A petition asking the president to appoint James S Glover of Spokane Falls governor of Washington territory is being enthusiastically circulated and signed in that section.

The Northern Pacific company have established an agency at Stevens mill, three miles west of Thompson, and 532 miles east of Portland. This agency at Starbuck on the O R & N line, twelve miles this side of Riparia has been discontinued.

Spokan Chronicle: Frank Sandall, who lives on Moran prairie, met with a serious accident a few days ago by falling from a building. It is feared that his leg is broken at the knee and he is suffering from [illegible] [illegible] hurt in a very dangerous way, but it is hoped he may recover.

Monday afternoon Joseph Houghton, who was employed at the office of the Ledger, Tacoma, met with a painful accident under the following circumstances: It appears that the boy was watching his brother, who was running a Gordon press, and got [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] his hand was drawn into the [illegible] and badly lacerated.

Kittitas Localizer: The railroad outlook through [the] Kittitas is brighter than ever. The Northern Pacific is all the talk at the present time. The iron, coal and other more valuable mines in the Yakima and [Wenatchee] valleys, will now receive the attention their importance demands and their development in consequence will be more circumscribed.

Spokane Review: Colonel G H Morgan recently received a dozen eastern quail and has turned them out to multiply on his farm near [illegible] prairie. The birds were in good condition and took to their surroundings without any evidence of discontent. If sportsmen can be prevailed upon to not shoot them the county will be alive with the delicious game in a few years.

Settlers on the Skagit river have great fears that the head waters of the river [illegible] will cause another jam of driftwood at the mouth of the navigation. The main entrance to the river has been thus [blo]cked during the past two or three years compelling steamboats to use a narrow and crooked channel and at the rate at which the jam has [been] [illegible] [illegible] recently there is reason to fear this channel [will] be filled up.

Seattle Post Intelligencer: The election for officers of the new county of Skagit took place last Tuesday. As two of the principal candidates (Downs for sheriff and O'Loughlin for [illegible]) had no opposition [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] the interest of the day there was not much enthusiasm and a light vote was cast throughout the county. At the former precinct [illegible] votes were cast, some eighteen or twenty [illegible]. The official result has only partially been received, but from the most authentic sources we give the result as follows: For sheriff, W P Downs, republican; sheriff, James O'Loughlin, democrat; treasurer, J D Cleaver, D; probate judge, H J White, R; school superintendent, Miss Jennie Bird, D; county commissioners, [illegible] Dunlap, R, [illegible] Cuthbert, D, and John J Blanks, R; surveyor, George Savage, D.

Pendleton's Rejection.

St. Paul Pioneer-Press

Pendleton's fate has been fixed ever since the civil service reform bill, in which direction he so prominently shared, became the law of the land by virtue of republican votes. He falls a martyr, though not of the noblest sort, to his innocent confidence that the democracy was even outwardly bound by its reform professions, and his faith that the republican party was equally insincere. The Standard Oil Company has [pai]d a senatorship. The democratic party has made itself liable to arrest for indecent exposure of the person.

In Political Dumps.

New York Evening Post

The Sun has a doleful dispatch from Washington [illegible] to give the views of democratic congressmen who are returning from visits to their constituents during the holidays. It represents nearly all of [them] standing on the verge of despair. One is [illegible] as saying that no man can succeed in this country on a free trade platform during the present agitation. [illegible] is drawn to a [illegible] now. A [illegible] that the [illegible] [illegible] of the tariff with a reduction of the duty on wool is an unusual [illegible]. [illegible] such a reduction will ruin them in Ohio. Another thinks that Louisiana will never stand a reduction of the sugar duties. Another as a Mississippian [thinks] [illegible] a duty upon jute. Another that South Carolina must have a duty on rice and still another Alabama on [illegible] a duty on iron. When the [illegible] protect such acts as these," says the dispatch, "they begin to get gloomy and are determined to do all in their power to prevent an agitation which the Sun [says] will lead to ruin. The most curious thing about the whole situation is the idea which seems to [illegible] the Sun in its persistent advocacy of the [illegible] view that by taking the back track now and attempting to dodge the issue till after the presidential election the party can improve its prospects at all.

A Gloom Obscures the Sun

If the opinion be correct that the tariff forms the only vital issue between the republicans and the democrats, then the very existence of the democratic party may fairly be said to depend on the action of the senate and of President Arthur.

THE ELECTION OF PAYNE.

A Review of the Senatorial Contest in Ohio—Its Probable Consequences

Special to the [illegible] Tribune

COLUMBUS, O, Jan 16.—The smoke of the great senatorial battle ever fought in Ohio has now cleared away, and shows how wisdom and integrity triumphant. There are a good many things that could not be fully ascertained while the contest raged that are very interesting and important as showing the bearing of the events of the last few days upon national politics. Monopoly, money [illegible] [illegible] have never taken a prominent part in politics in Ohio until now. A new era has dawned. The new democracy which nominated and elected Governor Hoadly, who is the principal [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] $50,000, have now elected Henry B Payne senator. It is said $150,000 of the Standard Oil Company's wealth was forthcoming. For [illegible] to [illegible] and this has been purely a commercial campaign. [illegible] Young Democracy [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Payne was made [illegible] because it was known he was worth $20,000,000 and was willing to [illegible] a hand. It was further understood that Colonel Oliver H Payne, son of the [illegible], was treasurer of the Standard Oil Company and had many millions that he was willing to tap in the old gentleman's interest. Early in the season the democratic [illegible] [illegible] the state were [illegible] [illegible] and candidates for the legislature were furnished all the money they desired to procure their election. The casual observer it would seem that the [illegible] legislature elected in this way would be faithful to the man who had elected them. But not so with the young democracy. They must be purchased again after the legislature actually assembled and that has been the work of the Payne bureau for the last week or ten days.

STANDARD OIL

This is the great stroke of the Standard Oil monopoly for the control of national affairs. Many years ago they captured and utterly corrupted the legislature of Pennsylvania and other states. They have now captured the state of Ohio. The Standard senatorship was not worth $300,000 to the Standard Oil Company, but the [illegible] in the contest just closed means simply the United States senatorship. Mr Payne's [illegible] to take his seat until one year from the 4th of March next. During that time it is expected to bring him out as the democratic candidate for the presidency. In that respect it will be an attempt to bring about a repetition of the Garfield nomination by the republicans in 1880. In this course the young democracy forgot that the opposition to the senate was a spontaneous uprising of the republicans of Ohio while Payne's election was a purely commercial affair.

A COMMERCIAL BARGAIN

Henry B Payne has been a candidate for the presidency the last quarter of a century. He was on the St Louis convention that nominated Tilden and it is claimed by his friends, was still in charge. George H Pendleton's campaign [illegible] at [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] thus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the part of the [illegible] by [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] Tilden in 1876. [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of 1884 [illegible] [illegible] very wealthy [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. The fact [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. The names of men who are alleged to [have sold] their votes is [illegible] [illegible] well known and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] made public with [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and the end may [illegible].

NO REFORMER WANTED.

From a republican standpoint there is much that [illegible] of satisfaction to be derived from the democratic [illegible] has [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to a party of [illegible] [illegible] and now the first [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] is [illegible] [illegible] slaughtered and [illegible] [illegible] by the leading democratic journals of the state and the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], two thirds of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. This cannot fail to have its effect upon the [illegible] at large. Only [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Senator Pendleton [illegible] [illegible] was a reformer [illegible] [illegible] willing to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] literally with [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] he [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] supreme judge [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] presidential [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] expectations.

A DISGRACED STATE

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. There is a very general feeling [illegible] that Ohio has been disgraced by the [illegible] of her senatorial [illegible]. It is [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] United States [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] scrupulous corruption could have reduced to [illegible] a senator who [illegible] [illegible] prominent in [illegible] [illegible] the country, and on the floor of the senate and whose legislative record is without a [illegible]. Aside from the general humiliation [illegible] [illegible] legislature should have been purchased there is a strong feeling of dissatisfaction among many democrats that a great [illegible] no [illegible] should [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in such transactions with democrats [illegible] [illegible] when the party is attempting to gain support on the ground that it is the natural enemy of monopolies. When Payne comes to Washington to take his seat in the senate it will not be necessary for him to bring any of the [illegible] [illegible] of the Standard Oil Company. Public opinion here has already stamped that and the collar mark on his desk.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE EDITORIAL

If [illegible] republicans looked upon the result of the [illegible] to senatorial election solely from the point of view of selfish partisans it is not likely that they would find any fault whatever with the election of Payne instead of Pendleton. The well known ability [illegible] the successful candidate with the most [illegible] monopoly in the country, one which has [illegible] [illegible] the authority of the states as well as of the [illegible] government and has assumed functions [illegible] [illegible] by the violation of all those [illegible] [illegible] which corporations cannot be excused from making [illegible] the heaviest load the democratic party of Ohio could take up. But there is one aspect in which the rejection of Pendleton and the choice of Payne must be regarded by all good citizens as a common misfortune. It is a turning back of the march of political improvement [illegible] with all who prize the development of our institutions and the safety of [illegible] republican [illegible] ready to act together no matter [illegible] their political [illegible] [illegible] they may [illegible] [illegible] to the [illegible] means to be accomplished.

Pendleton was the own [illegible] of the [illegible] democrats for the distinct reason that he had done what he could to root out and reform the pestilent doctrine with which the democracy was infected by Jackson, that the public offices are like the spoils of war and that the party which carries an election are like the victors in a battle, before whom the administration of the government lies prostrate as proper [illegible] for plunder. It was because Pendleton was a civil service reformer and the author of the civil service reform law that he was rejected. If he had been content to merely talk reform, [con]tinuing to divide up the plunder in the corrupt old Jacksonian style, no doubt the party leaders would have [co]ntinued to bind to [illegible] [illegible] and would to-day have been the wearer of the chaplet that sits on the ol[ea]ginous brow of his plutocratic rival. But he dared to go beyond professions and incur the dangerous reality of practice. He ventured to act on the [illegible] platform that the declarations of the democratic national platforms year after year, in favor of civil service reform meant what they said, and were honestly put forth, and that it was the part of a true statesman to put into formal legislation the principles of his party. To-day he knows how great was the mistake he made.

The passage of the civil service law had been demanded for many years by the best sentiment of the country, irrespective of partisan considerations. This had been acknowledged by all of the great organizations in their platforms. The act of Senator Pendleton was that of a patriot who believes that he serves his party best by serving his country best. There is nothing in this law to prevent democrats from getting their share of the offices unless they are willing to admit that they cannot make as good a showing in an examination as the republicans. Mr Thurman made this clear in the [illegible] he published in Columbus the other day. But these facts could not soften the rancor of the Ohio democratic "idea that the man who had proposed and helped to pass a law that made it necessary for them to exhibit some other qualifications than voting the democratic ticket as a passport to office must be hunted out of the public service forthwith.

Such action as this of the Ohio democrats is a public misfortune, because it puts in the foremost rank the worst elements of political life. It is a formal notice to "statesmen" that only by unswerving and conscientious hypocrisy can they retain the favor of the [illegible] factionists who must be dominant in the party. The [illegible] is a [illegible] practice of the high-sounding principles that are employed in platforms to catch gudgeon voters with is to be punished by banishment. It is an avowal that the democrats in the pivotal and powerful state of Ohio mean to return with what haste they may to the spoils plan of filling public offices. It is an appeal for the displacement of all noble motives in politics and the substitution for them of the lowest passions of the intrigue for office. It is a move to make our elections every year a [illegible] scramble for office, fighting for possession of the public treasury, instead of contests of principle. The Ohio democrats sent Thurman to the rear because he had offended a great corporation which had solid reasons to distribute among the legislature. Their sacrifice of Pendleton is [illegible] as that of Thurman, a surrender of the Ohio democracy to the guilds, and its most degraded forces. As republicans we are not [illegible] to meet a better antagonism on the higher platform.

The Pay of Judges

New York Times

It is a very poor economy that [illegible] to the national judiciary from the mediocre, and which [makes it] a preparatory school for legal practice, subjected to the temptation of sordid motives, and leaving it open to the allurements of corporate power or other interests and designs of the [opp]osed to the right well-being of the state. It would be hard to find a place where judicial services so inadequately are paid as on the bench of the United States courts. A [illegible] justice in this city, who, by grace of this board of aldermen, is taken from the charge of a liquor saloon or is graduated from the force of patrolmen, is paid double the amount which a judge receives in the United States district court.

The Pioneer Steamer Senator Sold to New Zealand Men.

THE MORMON PRESS ON MURRAY'S MESSAGE.

The British Columbia House Passes the Woman Suffrage Bill—Rich Strike at Bodie—News from Seattle—Etc.

Sale of the Steamer Senator

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 16.—[Special.]—The steamer Senator has been sold by the Pacific Coast Steamship Company to parties in Auckland. She will be changed into a barkentine and will make the trip there under canvas. She came out here in 1849 and for some years ran between this city and Sacramento. According to the stories of old timers she took in on high [illegible] money each trip from passengers to [illegible] at Sacramento for the return trip and for a time she was more profitable to her owners than a gold mine. The California Steam Navigation Company afterwards ran her for [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] went into the hands of the Pacific Mail company. The Pacific Coast steamship company had her for many years, and an old salt speaking of her yesterday said that there was not an ocean steamship company on this coast that had not owned her and there was not a port on the coast that she had not been run into. Every one of them had made money out of her. Her hull is as [good] to-day and if she don't make coin for the New Zealanders it will be their fault. The steamer was constructed of wood and went out of commission about two years ago after having been in constant service for thirty-six years.

Death of Judge Crockett.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 16.—Joseph B Crockett, ex-justice of the supreme court, died at his home at Fruitvale last evening. He was 76 years old and a native of Kentucky.

Shipping Intelligence.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 16.—Arrived—Steamer State of California, Debney, sixty-five hours from Portland via Astoria forty-one hours, passengers and merchandise to Goodall, Perkins & Co; schooner James A Garfield, Morse, five days from Columbia river, 44,000 feet lumber and 30,000 laths to order. Cleared—British steamer Barnard Castle, Smith, Nanaimo, R Dunsmuir & Sons; steamer Umatilla, Worth.

Big Opium Cases.

Further criminal prosecution in the big opium seizure on board the steamer Tokio in January 1882, has been abandoned and defendants discharged. The civil case is still pending against them in the United States circuit court to recover the price of the opium.

Wedding Bells.

J Mervin Donahue, son of Peter Donahue, the railroad magnate, was married this evening to Miss Lillie Wallace, daughter of ex-Chief Justice Wallace of California, at St Mary's cathedral. After the ceremony a reception was given at the residence of the bride's parents on Van Ness avenue.

Rich Strikes at Bodie.

BODIE, Jan 16.—There is considerable excitement here over recent strikes in the Standard and Bodie mines. The Bodie strike is on the 500 foot level west of the [illegible] Belvidere and Burgess bonanza. It has been raised [illegible] [illegible] the Fortuna vein crossed the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in the Burgess. Recently the mine has been short of ore and in straitened [illegible] to [illegible] enough to supply the mill; this new development was [illegible] which proves to be very rich in both silver and gold. The Standard strike was on the 600 foot level which has heretofore been barren. During the last week a ledge was struck eight feet wide and [illegible] of milling ore. Little ore has ever been taken from below the 400 foot level so that the strike gives [illegible] [illegible] ground to work [illegible] [illegible] at least probably two years. The Standard mine is owned principally in New York.

Shooting Scrape at Eureka.

EUREKA, Jan 16.—A shooting scrape took place last night in which two bound [illegible] [illegible] belonging to the schooner [illegible] Thayer were wounded. The shots were fired by two gamblers named Burns Andrews and John Johnson. One of the wounded men will die. John Wilson, the other, was shot through the [illegible]. Andrews surrendered and will be examined to-morrow.

UTAH.

The Mormon Press on the Governor's Message.

SALT LAKE, Jan 16.—Mormon papers comment severely on the governor's message. The News says: It is a matter of regret that the governor has allowed himself to become the tool of a clique hostile to the majority of the people. With a genial disposition and a fair record as a soldier he ought to hold himself aloof from such influences. He has made himself an enemy of the territory, a slanderer of its citizens and the instrument of evil men for the overthrow of Utah. The Herald says: "We can tell the governor and the authors of the message that if they desired the paper to carry weight they overshot the mark and will be disappointed. From first to last it is an assault upon the people and their religion. Viciousness runs through the entire document. We hope the legislature will treat these ill timed threats with contempt, and that in none of its acts will it be swerved or influenced by menaces and intimidations.

DR. C. McLANE'S

Celebrated Liver Pills

In offering to the public Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills as a remedy for Liver and Bilious Complaints, we presume no apology will be needed. The great prevalence of Liver Complaint and Bilious Diseases of all kinds throughout the United States, and particularly in the West and South, where, in the majority of cases, the patient is not within the reach of a regular physician, requires that some remedy should be provided that would not in the least impair the constitution, and yet be safe and effectual. That such is the character of Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, there can be no doubt. The great success which has invariably attended their use, will, we think, be sufficient to convince the most incredulous. It has been our sincere wish that these Pills should be fairly tested, and stand or fall by the effects produced. That they have been so tested and that the result has been in every respect favorable, we call tens of thousands to witness who have experienced their beneficial effects.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

are not held forth or recommended, (like most of the popular medicines of the day), as universal cure-alls, but simply as a specific for Liver Complaints and those symptoms connected with a deranged state of that organ.

FUTURE BANK CIRCULATION.

What is to serve as a basis for bank circulation when the national debt shall have been paid? This question already begins to puzzle many. Payment of the national debt, should it be continued at the present rapid rate, will very soon bring this question on for solution. Touching this subject a bold proposition has been broached at Washington, which is attracting attention. It is simply a proposition to make a certain portion of the national debt permanent by the issue of a long two per cent. bond to be used for securing bank circulation. Many journals have expressed approval of it. The Philadelphia Press says: "Between a return to wildcat currency and the permanent retention of a portion of the national debt, we unhesitatingly subscribe to the perpetuation of the debt." This has the full ring of one who knows what he is talking about. No less so are his utterances in opposition to the perpetual two per cent. bond scheme, although they contain sentences as unpalatable to one class of readers as the above quotation is to another class. "Nevertheless," says the Press, "the fact cannot be disguised that the scheme for a fifty year or perpetual two per cent. bond to serve as a basis for banking when the United States is able to discharge its debt is simply offering the banks a bounty for doing us the favor to issue our paper money. The state banks would, of course, be glad to do it for nothing, but they cannot give us a currency of uniform value. Therefore it is proposed to say to the national banks, 'Now, we will issue as much paper as is wanted in bonds, sell it to you, keep it for you and pay you interest on it, and you issue an equivalent amount of paper currency and receive interest upon it.' This is the bold proposition; we can make nothing else out of it. It may be good banking but we do not believe it is good political economy." Such language cannot fail to set people thinking and studying for themselves what is wrong and what is right in political finance as in other departments of political inquiry.

Others suggest that the choice need not be between national bank currency and wildcat state bank currency, but that coin certificates may become a substitute, providing at once a solid, uniform and satisfactory currency, based on possession and not on credit; a currency that could be made to dispense with the useless expenditure for coinage, by issuing such certificates on assayed bullion; a currency the economy of which would be manifested in the saving of interest on its basis, and in saving enough in coinage to pay for its issue; in other words, wholly inexpensive but entirely secure. It is not, as is stated in some well meaning quarters, "the one thing needful that some way shall be devised in which national bank circulation shall be secured beyond preadventure," but how an adequate, secure and economical currency for the people shall be secured beyond preadventure. If this can be done through the national banks without involving worse evils, well and good: if not, the good of the people must be cared for and the currency provided in some other manner.

ANSWER TO INQUIRER.

A correspondent at Woodburn writes that on last Monday W. C. Evarts, in a speech to the people of that town, asserted that the pork packers of Portland paid the merchants' exchange to withhold the proper quotations of the pork market, thereby depressing the price of pork from 7 cents to 4½ cents, causing a loss of many thousands of dollars to the farmers, that wool quotations were falsified until the visible supply was bought up by Portland wool men, that the exchange received quotations in cipher and manipulated them to suit, and that the public press of Portland, the exchange and the commission merchants withhold the proper quotations to the farmer's loss. Other like assertions were also made by the speaker. We should take no notice of such statements did they not reflect upon the integrity of the public press and of our merchants. The exchange is a private institution furnishing reports to those who pay for them. That they are reliable is evident from the fact of their being accepted the country over. The exchange does not, and never did, quote the Portland pork market, confining itself entirely to wheat and freights. It is conclusive that pork packers do not run it. Few Portland men buy wool, much less rush into the country after it. The bulk of the clip is sold on commission by merchants who always demand the top price so that their commissions may be heavy. Quotations are, unless otherwise stated, based upon sales. It follows that there must be a sale to give an exact quotation. If there is one article of consumption for which the people of Portland pay from three to four hundred per cent. profit, freight considered, on the price paid the producer, the name of that article would be of interest. This assertion is, on its face, untrue. Market reports are telegraphed in cipher for three reasons: First, to avoid errors in figures; second, economy; third, secrecy. The originals are always on file for comparison with codes by subscribers. The last and most important charge, that there is a general combination to fleece the farmer, is believed by no intelligent person, nor by the speaker. Such a combination is totally impossible and too absurd to be considered. The whole matter is scarcely worth reference, but lest this man succeed in fleecing the valley people by the cry of "thief," THE OREGONIAN gives them warning. Evarts is said to be interested in the publication of a so-called farmers' paper here. His statements are false throughout. He is now organizing "union clubs" in the interior. Much the same system was started here nearly three years ago. It was styled the Interior Merchants' Protective Agency. The interior merchants had to visit this city for what little protection they ever got.

An English statistician of high rank calls attention to the fact that during the last fifty years the average of human life in England has increased from 29.9 years to 41.9 years, a gain of two years. No such change could have taken place, he argues, without a great increase in the vitality of the people. "Not only have fewer died, but the masses who have lived must have been healthier and suffered less from sickness than they did. From the nature of the figures, also, the improvement must have been among the masses, and not among a select class, whose figures threw up the average." He says that "in longer life, in increased consumption of the commodities they use, in better education, in greater freedom from crime and pauperism, and in increased savings, the masses of the people are immensely better off than they were fifty years ago." "Discontent with the present," he adds, "should not make us forget that things have been much worse."

Henry B. Payne was the democratic candidate for senator before the Ohio legislature in 1851. The free soilers held the balance of power between the whigs and democrats, and after a contest of two months brought out Benjamin F. Wade, upon whom the whigs united with them. Wade was elected, and continued in the senate eighteen years. At the time of his first election he was a common pleas judge, a stranger to political life, had no acquaintances in the legislature, and was taken up simply because the free soilers were willing to vote for him.

The "holocaust" at Belleville, Illinois, as the newspapers generally call it, seems to have been prepared in advance so that it might, indeed, be a "whole burnt offering." The outside doors of the convent were locked and had to be burst open with battering rams, and the doors of the bedrooms of the unfortunate victims were locked "in accordance with a rule of the convent." Yet this arrangement was "a very fashionable educational institution!" It was well calculated to make angels of the fashionable inmates.

RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

The exhaustive and excellent review of the river improvement question, furnished the board of trade Monday night by its special committee, is made worse than worthless by a foot-note advising further investigation and delay. What can Messrs. Corbett and Dodd do before the national board of trade, or before the commerce committee of congress, with a report which says in so many words that the matter has not been sufficiently considered? They can do simply nothing; and it would not be surprising if they were laughed at for their pains. The board of trade should decide what is wanted, and then go about getting it; but to recite the facts of our channel obstructions, to suggest plans for removal of the bars, and then, in a foot-note, to cover the matter with a wet blanket by adding that the matter has not been sufficiently investigated, is folly. The national board of trade will be utterly in the dark as to what is wanted, and so will congress. The foot-note, which is nothing more nor less than an empty courtesy to Capt. Buchanan, will be understood to have a very different and a very serious meaning; and unless our representatives have the discretion to suppress it, all appeals based upon the board of trade's information and action will be futile. The matter had much better been left to Messrs. Corbett and Dodd without the benefit of the board's information and views.

And without some definite plan of temporary improvement and without some definite preparation to do the work, it will be idle to ask congress for an appropriation. Is it to be expected that congress will appropriate a large sum of money upon assurances from the board of trade that it is the opinion of a certain river man that certain results could be accomplished by its expenditure in a certain way, with the statement that the way is not yet provided? An appeal of this sort would be silly. When it was proposed to build the jetties at the mouth of the Mississippi river, Capt. Eads formed a company and made an offer to accomplish certain specified results for certain specified pay. The proposition was a definite one, it was accepted, and the whole Mississippi river valley is richer to-day for it. But suppose the New Orleans board of trade had gone before congress with the statement that Capt. Eads was of the opinion that jetties would accomplish certain results desired, and to this statement have added that in the opinion of the board the matter should be further investigated before action; and to all this have added an appeal for help, what chance would there been for getting the jetties? Just none at all, of course. The thing to do is to organize a company to do the temporary work of sluicing and to make the offer proposed by Mr. Gates. Congress then could either accept or decline it. If we can't or don't want to organize such a company, then there is no use at all of talking about the sluicing scheme.

The farmers of California, after a bitter struggle of many years to save their lands from damage by the debris from hydraulic mining, have gained a substantial victory through the courts. The decision recently rendered by Judge Sawyer, making the temporary injunction granted three years ago against hydraulic mining perpetual, has been the occasion of very natural demonstrations on their part. While the result will be disastrous to many millions of capital invested in mining, unless some means can be devised to prevent the nuisance, there can be no doubt among fair minded men that the case was decided right. The old maxim that one should use his own so as not to injure another's property is founded upon exact justice, and the application of it to this case will have a tendency to impress the rich corporations and mining men of California with the fact that they cannot use their great power with entire recklessness. Although this case involved the welfare mainly of the farmers in the Sacramento valley, the benefits of it will doubtless be felt by the whole agricultural population of the state.

In the constitutional convention of Illinois in the year 1847, there were 162 delegates. An effort was made to secure a reunion of the survivors at Springfield at the beginning of the present year. It was found that only thirty-five of the number were still living. Of these twenty-two assembled, and others sent letters. Among the latter were Judge O. C. Pratt, once a resident of Oregon and now of San Francisco, and E. O. Smith of San Jose. At least three names on the roll-call of thirty-seven years ago could not be accounted for at all—so soon does the on-moving tide of human affairs cover men and hide everything but a recollection, which also will soon pass away.

General Sherman has begun his presidential canvass by trying to make Missouri a republican state. It is only a few weeks ago that he settled in St. Louis, but he has already told the people there that they are the laughing-stock of the entire nation. He arraigns them for their lack of progress, their indolent complaining ways, their failure to reach out after things, the undeveloped condition of their state—much of it naturally tributary to St. Louis—and many other things. General Sherman broke up the solid south nineteen years ago, and we trust that he will be equally successful in his present campaign.

Mr. Burt, the workingman of parliament, in a paper on American impressions, remarks upon the superiority of our common school system over the English schools. He was surprised to find that in a high school in Illinois two-thirds of the pupils were the children of miners and other working people. "Nothing approaching this," he says, "can be found in any mining district of England." If he had pursued his observations further he would have found that the public schools of this country are much superior to parochial schools.

The liquor men of Ohio have neatly placed the democracy between the devil and deep sea. They demand the repeal of the Scott law. If they be refused they will defeat the party in the next election; if their demands be complied with the prohibitionists will help to snow the party under. It is dangerous to fool with a question like this. It is more likely to be loaded than not.

There is active competition among railroad points in northern Idaho and northeastern Washington for the business of the Coeur d'Alene mines. A town meeting to consider the question was held a few days since at Spokane Falls, and it was resolved to spare no effort to secure the business for that point.

Private advices from New York contradict the telegraph news report that a receiver has been appointed for the Oregon and Transcontinental. Representatives of the company here assert that the report is a piece of stock jobbery.

General Crook insists that as soon as the Indian learns how to keep his family from want, he will gladly give up his tribe. When he knows that his land is really his and cannot be taken from him, the tribal relation will disappear.

Two thousand miners at Deadwood are negotiating for transportation to the Coeur d'Alene mines.

METEOROLOGICAL REPORT

THE OREGONIAN IN THE EAST

CITY.

THE KIDNAPPING CASE.—James Irwin and George [illegible] who have been under arrest for several days [illegible] charge of kidnapping Agnes Galvin [illegible] in the police court yesterday. [illegible] Caples moved that the [illegible] crowd of spectators. [illegible] court room was crowded every day [illegible] Judge Moreland reserved his opinion and [illegible] examination then took place at the [illegible] which he held them both to answer in the [illegible] of $500 each.

[illegible] PREMISES.—Second street, from Alder to [illegible] and Alder street near Taylor have been for [illegible] cumbered with piles of wood refuse lumber [illegible] material and dirt. If any remark was made [illegible] the matter some contractor would shout "I've [illegible] permit to use this street and I'm going to use [illegible] as long as I want to." Right here it may be [illegible] that it is time this matter of [illegible] permits was attended to and [illegible]. Of course every one is willing that every [illegible] facility should be granted to parties to [illegible] build [illegible] but contractors should not imagine that a permit to use a portion of a street gives [illegible] the fee simple of the ground and that the [illegible] have no further right in it. A person should [illegible] allow the use of a street for as long a time as [illegible] absolutely necessary and with the [illegible] that the public be incommoded [illegible] little as possible. Very often the [illegible] is kept impassable for weeks when it is [illegible] and when a man with the least bit of [illegible] the rights of the public would have it [illegible] and made passable. The will [illegible] contractors in this matter has been a [illegible] complaint for a long time and it is [illegible] that the authorities seem [illegible] to this abuse. [illegible] was brought up [illegible] Judge Moreland yesterday and fined [illegible] obstructing the street at the corner of Second and [illegible]. His permit had expired on the 31st inst. [illegible] judge in passing sentence remarked that [illegible] been obliged for weeks to travel around [illegible] at the corner of Second and Taylor [illegible] officer on that beat to look after the matter.

DEATH OF WATERMAN JOHNSON.—At the residence of his son on Smith [illegible] Douglas county, Oregon, January 4, 1884, Waterman Johnson passed away [illegible] aged 90 years and 8 months. [illegible] He was one of [illegible] pioneers [illegible] the plains [illegible] in 1843, in company with [illegible] H. W. [illegible] and others. He first settled in [illegible] afterward in the year 18[illegible] he moved to [illegible] located a claim [illegible] on the river, where he has resided ever since [illegible] and has been identified with most of the [illegible] made since [illegible]. He was a man of [illegible] convictions and expressed his [illegible] without fear or favor [illegible] but his opposition to [illegible] religious [illegible] His death was not [illegible] expected and for forty days before he passed away [illegible] knew the end was near and talked of his coming [illegible] calmly and without fear.

FOLLOWED THE CUSTOMERS.—Robert Dorner [illegible] and the pair of brothers who run a [illegible] at the corner of Second and Taylor streets was [illegible] taken to the city jail wild with delirium [illegible]. The brothers bought the [illegible] saloon from the Lamotte some time since and paid [illegible] $400 in coin which he placed in a [illegible] in the building and which was [illegible] a few minutes after. The theft could not be fastened [illegible] any one and the Dorners retained possession [illegible] saloon which they have been running [illegible] something on the plan of the [illegible]. It is a disgrace to the city and [illegible] appear to be just the persons to conduct such a [illegible]. The vile whisky they sell and drink [illegible] produced snakes in the boots of one of them [illegible] same venomous reptiles are sprouting in the [illegible] fellow's brogans or his boots before [illegible] the least harm their [illegible] could do the city [illegible] be their own taking off.

[illegible] A SAW.—Tom Collins has come to the [illegible] again. It seems that he has been engaged [illegible] wood a short distance from town on the [illegible] road. He borrowed a cross cut saw from [illegible] to aid him in his labors and after [illegible] day he came to the court [illegible] but [illegible] morning. From this it would appear that [illegible] understood the nature and habits of saws [illegible] it is known that he went to a saloon and [illegible] a load of rum and gum evidently thinking [illegible] this was the proper way to [illegible] the saw [illegible] that he did not understand his business. He [illegible] very happy however and was [illegible] by [illegible] who stowed the saw in [illegible] Collins in the city jail. Hansen was [illegible] yesterday looking for his saw and not [illegible] found Tom Collins or no.

FREE MIDNIGHT CONCERT.—Of course the only [illegible] weather in [illegible] region in the winter time is rainy [illegible] but the present clear, bright, bracing [illegible] weather is just the next best thing [illegible] nights are as lovely as the days and Jack Frost [illegible] up the [illegible] is heard like a harp of a thousand strings and [illegible] in the wee sma' hours as the weary reporter [illegible] wending his way home and the streets are hushed in silence old Boreas sweeps the [illegible] as if a little seraph was perched upon every [illegible] pole playing celestial music for the ten [illegible] of the tired population [illegible]. There are many who [illegible] take advantage of these fine nights to have [illegible] angelic music, for they will probably [illegible] have any other opportunity.

ORGANIZED FOR CLEANING.—Messrs. Adams [illegible] and Gerdes the council committee on streets [illegible] public property, held a meeting yesterday afternoon to transact business regarding the new street cleaning department. The capabilities of the respective candidates for the new positions were thoroughly canvassed and an amicable agreement [illegible] finally reached. Jack Robinson received the appointment [illegible] of the new department at a salary [illegible] $100 per month and William Rath was hired as [illegible]. In response to the committee's call for [illegible] there were brought up in the street in front [illegible] of the council chamber seven very good animals [illegible] were purchased but they were all satisfactory [illegible] and probably will be.

COST OF CARRYING A PISTOL.—Paul Kruger who [illegible] a pistol at George Eggert in front of the [illegible] house last Saturday morning was yesterday [illegible] $10 by Police Judge Moreland for carrying a concealed weapon and $10 more for having [illegible] within the city limits. The charge against him of an assault with a dangerous weapon [illegible] Eggert was dismissed [illegible] the evidence [illegible] that he was drunk at the time and had [illegible] [illegible] any one. Eggert is one of the defendants in the kidnapping case and was committed to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

CHINESE WAGES TO BE REDUCED.—The [illegible] companies have served notice on the Chinese labor contractors that after February 1 the wages of Chinese working on the respective roads will be [illegible] reduced to 90 cents a day. The announcement of [illegible] reduction has had a paralyzing effect not only [illegible] contractors but on the laborers also and it is [illegible] that it will not be accepted [illegible] of Sisson, Wallace & Co., the railroad contractors [illegible] California rate is now in the city engaging [illegible] be paid $30 and $35 a month and will [illegible] all that offer themselves.

[illegible] STEER.—No little excitement was created [illegible] the business part of Front street yesterday afternoon. A band of cattle were being driven from [illegible] dock up Front street towards Jefferson. One little steer [illegible] his comrades and took a [illegible] up street [illegible] pursued by a horse ridden by [illegible] the butcher [illegible]. He had his own way [illegible] scaring a few pedestrians near him indoors. Finally he was [illegible] Stark street into the [illegible] of Hodge, Davis & Co.'s [illegible] which [illegible] happened to be open. There he was corralled by [illegible] the doors and shot till he was dead.

ONE SALOON CLOSED UP.—The State [illegible] on Alder street seems little likely to need a license for this quarter as it has been closed and the door double locked as it were by a pair of legal processes. Primarily it was taken in charge by [illegible] Sprague under an attachment levied by Sykes & Co. of San Francisco and [illegible] it was taken out of Sprague's hands yesterday by Sheriff [illegible] replevin [illegible] by [illegible] who [illegible] a mortgage on the concern. It will [illegible] to the city if the list of defunct saloons is further increased.

[illegible] BACK TO LIFE.—Young R[illegible] was [illegible] while attempting to escape from the [illegible] last July and who was pardoned when the physicians supposed him to be dying has been [illegible] back to life by his devoted [illegible] and was out of doors for a little while yesterday enjoying the sunlight and beautiful air.

A CHANGE.

Our Mr. S. LIPMAN in New York has just completed negotiations connecting this firm with one of the largest Dry Goods Houses [illegible] and [illegible] a radical change in the method of conducting our business in future he has directed us to inaugurate a

GENERAL SALE,

And offer our entire stock at SUCH A REDUCTION as to insure positive and immediate sale. Acting upon these instructions we closed our store on Tuesday for the purpose of

Reducing Every Single Article

In the House, which we did, and the crowds that thronged our store on our opening day will testify that this is the

To Continue for Thirty Days

We find it useless to quote prices, as to quote ALL would make an endless list; to quote a few would convey no idea of the MAGNITUDE of the sale. We can simply re-assert that EVERY ARTICLE is surprisingly marked down in price; and our reputation as a first class and reliable house is a sufficient guarantee that this announcement will be strictly adhered to.

TO AVOID ALL MISUNDERSTANDINGS hereafter, and to protect our system of doing business in the future, we hereby give NOTICE that these prices are DURING THE SALE ONLY and will POSITIVELY NOT BE DUPLICATED AFTER the expiration of same.

DECISION IN U. S. CIRCUIT COURT, DEADY, J.

U. S. Circuit Court, District of Oregon.

Monday, January 4, 1884.

John Gilmore v. The Northern Pacific Railway Company—No. 986. Action for injury to the person.

[1] INJURY CAUSED BY NEGLIGENCE OF FELLOW SERVANTS. The rule first suggested in Priestly v. Fowler, 3 M. & W. (1837), that a master who has exercised due care and skill in the selection and retention of his servants, is not responsible for an injury sustained by one of them in the course of his employment by the negligence of another, however distant the grade or different the labor of such servants or how widely separated the locality of their several employments, is being modified by the course of judicial opinion and decision, so as to meet the ends of justice in cases since arising of corporations and others engaged in varied and widely extended operations under one nominal and invisible head, but in reality divided into separate parts or divisions, under the direction and control of local bosses, superintendents, or heads of departments, who to all intents and purposes represent and stand for the corporation with practically unqualified power to employ, direct and discharge workmen and to provide the necessary material and appliances for their convenient and safe employment.

(2) WHEN FELLOW SERVANT STANDS FOR MASTER. It seems well established that a master is responsible to his servant for an injury sustained by him, without his fault, in consequence of the negligence of a fellow servant: (1) When the latter, having authority over the former, orders him to do an act not within the scope of his employment, whereby he is exposed to a danger not contemplated in his contract of service, and he is injured in so doing. (2) When the master has charged the latter with the duty of providing proper material and appliances for carrying on a work in which he is personally engaged with the former or not, and by his neglect to do so he is injured.

(3) CASE IN JUDGMENT. In February, 1883, the Northern Pacific railway was engaged in constructing its road through western Montana, and had many gangs of men, numbering not less than 50 each, at work on the line of the route, at from three to five miles apart, under the control and direction of foremen or local bosses, with the power to employ and discharge, subject themselves to the control of a general superintendent and assistant, who passed along the route and inspected the camps at certain periods. Some of these gangs used giant powder for blasting the rocks and frozen earth, and in such case the foreman was charged especially with the duty of handling the powder and thawing it when frozen. The general superintendent was aware of the danger of thawing powder before a fire, and had given general notice not to do it, and provided a safe appliance, called a "heater," for the purpose, subject to the requisition of the local boss; the plaintiff was employed as a pick and shovel laborer in one of these gangs where powder was always thawed without a "heater" before the fire, and while assisting in so thawing powder by direction of the local boss, was injured by an explosion. Held, that the local boss, so far, stood in the place of the defendant and that the neglect of the former to obtain and use the proper appliance for thawing powder, and his directing the plaintiff to assist in thawing powder without the security of such appliance, were wrongful acts for which the defendant is responsible to the plaintiff so far as he was injured thereby.

DEADY, J.

This action is brought by the plaintiff, a citizen of Oregon, against the defendant, a corporation formed under a law of the United States, to recover the sum of $25,000 damages for serious bodily injuries, sustained by him on February 13, 1883, at Horse Plains, Missoula county, Montana, while in the employ of the defendant as a laborer in and about the construction of its railway, by reason of the negligence and unskillfulness of the defendant in attempting to thaw a quantity of giant powder before an open fire, whereby the same was suddenly exploded; and without any negligence or fault on the part of the plaintiff.

The answer of the defendant contains a denial of all the allegations of the complaint and a plea or defense that the injury suffered by the plaintiff "was caused and occasioned" by his own "fault, carelessness and negligence, and that of "his co-laborers and fellow servants;" and without the fault of the defendant.

The case was tried with a jury on November 21 and there was a verdict found for the plaintiff in the sum of $[illegible].

The defendant now moves for a new trial on the grounds: (1) Insufficiency of the evidence to justify the verdict; and (2) Error in law occurring at the trial.

On the argument of the motion, the first ground was abandoned, it being admitted that the injury to the plaintiff was the direct result of the negligence of the foreman, and the only point made in support of it is that the court erred in not instructing the jury as requested by the defendant, that if the defendant exercised reasonable care in the employment and retention of Cortin as foreman, and provided him or placed at his control a safe appliance for thawing giant powder, of the most approved kind, and one that is in general use for that purpose, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover; or in other words, that Cortin, the boss of the gang in which the plaintiff was at work, was only his fellow-servant, and therefore the defendant is not responsible for any injury sustained by the plaintiff through or by means of such foreman's fault or negligence.

On the trial it appeared from the evidence that the plaintiff is a man about 41 years of age, accustomed to labor with a pick and shovel, and that he was in the employ of defendant as such laborer, from April 7, 1882, to the date of his injury; that a great many gangs of men, numbering fifty or more each, were at this time in the employ of the defendant in this region, engaged in the construction of its road, at points from three to five miles apart, under the direction and control of local bosses, who had the power to employ and discharge the men as they saw proper; that the whole line of work was in the charge of a general superintendent, Mr. J. L. Hallett, and assistants, who traveled along the route at intervals and inspected the condition of the gangs or camps and the character of the work being done by them, and gave such directions to the several bosses concerning the same as was needed; that by some of those gangs giant powder was used for blasting rock and frozen earth, and that in such case the handling of this powder, and particularly the thawing of it, was committed to the special charge of the local boss, who was supposed to have some special qualifications for the trust and received extra compensation for the skill and risk involved therein; that it being known to the superintendent that it was dangerous to thaw giant powder by placing the sticks or canisters before an open fire, notice was given generally to the bosses not to do it, but to use a "dug-out" or drift in the ground, in which the powder was placed and subjected to a gradual and uniform heat from a fire at the mouth of the cave, which warmed the air within; or a device called a "heater" or "thawer"—the same being a galvanized-iron kettle weighing from 50 to 75 pounds, with double walls, whereby the powder placed in the body of this vessel and hung over a fire—the space between the walls being filled with water—was subjected to a gradual and uniform heat, so as to prevent a partial or unequal thawing or softening of the mass, and thereby setting a portion of the nitro glycerine in its composition free from the earthy or other non-explosive matter, wherein it was held in absorption, in which state it was very liable to explode "from handling or any slight disturbance or concussion; that these "heaters" were provided by the superintendent and stored at a convenient place at the end of the road, from whence they could be obtained by a local boss whenever he desired one; but none was ever furnished to or used in the camp or gang when plaintiff was employed, and Cortin always thawed his powder before an open fire; that on the morning of February 13 Cortin's gang were engaged in cutting a ditch about a half mile from the line of the road for the purpose of taking water to the tank, when Cortin said to the plaintiff, "Jack, we have to thaw some powder," to which he answered, "Where is 'Old Billy,' the powder thawer?" when Cortin replied, "I forgot that; do you get some wood and make the fire;" and thereupon the plaintiff cut and carried wood from the vicinity and made and kept up the fire, while "Old Billy" and Cortin attended to the thawing of the powder, until some time in the afternoon, and just as the plaintiff was walking away from the fire in the direction of where the rest of the "gang" were working on the ditch, Cortin picked up a stick of the powder and, as he turned his face from the fire, said, "Is this anyway near thawed?" when it exploded in his hand, killing himself and "Old Billy" outright and injuring the plaintiff severely, as by breaking his ribs, severely lacerating the muscles of his arm, breaking the drum of his ear, injuring the sight of one of his eyes and otherwise affecting him, so that he is reduced from the condition of a strong, well man to that of an invalid, who will probably never be able to labor again, or be altogether free from physical pain and inconvenience; that a short time before the explosion Thomas Flanagan, an assistant superintendent, passed along the route, and as he testifies, "saw the powder being thawed before the fire, and told Cortin to have it removed; that he knew it was contrary to orders, and he would discharge him in the morning;" and then passed on without stopping to see that the powder was removed or taking any other measures to have it done.

The court instructed the jury, as requested by the defendant, "that if the foreman, Cortin, and the plaintiff were both employed in the same, and in a common employment or service, under the same or a common boss or superintendent, they were fellow servants, and the defendant is not liable for the negligence of Cortin in the course of this employment, causing injury to the plaintiff; and the fact that Cortin was foreman of the gang does not make the defendant responsible for his acts, as to the plaintiff or other employes in such gang, and added:

If Cortin was simply the foreman of the gang in which the plaintiff was employed, both working together side by side, the former merely leading in the work and giving the immediate direction to it in the presence or near vicinity of a common boss or superintendent, then Cortin and the plaintiff were fellow-servants, and the defendant is not responsible for an injury to either caused by the negligence of the other. But if the work which the gang of men was engaged at was under the practical direction and control of Cortin, subject only to the directions received by him occasionally from time to time, as the evidence is, from an absent or distant superintendent and the occasional and general oversight of his traveling assistants. If Cortin had the authority to employ and discharge the men in his gang and direct and control their movements, so far as the work in his charge was concerned; And ordinarily there was no one else present and authorized to supervise or direct the work or the laborers, then he represented the company for the time being. He stood, so far as they are concerned, for the defendant, and his negligence is so far the negligence of the defendant; and the latter is responsible to the plaintiff therefor, to the extent he was injured in consequence thereof.

Upon this statement of the law, the case was submitted to the jury to say whether Cortin was a mere fellow servant of the plaintiff or not; with the further instruction that if they found he was, their verdict must be for the defendant, but if not, then it should be for the plaintiff in such sum as they might find he was entitled to upon the evidence, under the instructions and suggestions of the court.

Beginning with Priestly v. Fowler, 3 M. and W. (England, 1837), and Murray v. Railway Co., 1 McMullan (South Carolina, 1841), 385, and Farwell v. Boston Ry. Co., 4 Met. (Mass., 1842), 49, the rule was established that a master or employer was not responsible for an injury sustained by his servant or employe in consequence of the negligence of a fellow servant, as to the employment and retention of whom the former had exercised due diligence and care; but that the liability to injury by such means was one of the risks incident to the employment, and that a "fellow servant" within the meaning of this rule were all persons employed or engaged in the same common service, from the highest to the lowest, and who are subject to the same general control." Wood's M. & S., § 425.

But in the progress of society and the general substitution of ideal and invisible masters and employers for the actual and visible ones of former times, in the form of corporations engaged in varied, detached and widespread operations, as in the construction and working of long lines of railway, it has been seen and felt that the universal application of the rule often resulted in hardship and injustice.

Accordingly, the tendency of the more modern authorities appears to be in the direction of such a modification and limitation of the rule, as shall eventually devolve upon the employer, under like circumstances, a due and just share of the responsibility for the lives and limbs of the persons in its employ.

In the supreme court of the United States the rule has not only been materially limited but sharply questioned. Packet Co. v. McCue, 17 Wall., 508; Railway Co. vs. Fort, Id., 553. And in several of the states it has been much relaxed. Louisville Ry. Co. v. Collins, 2 Duv. (Ky.), 114; Flike v. The B. & A. Ry. Co., 53 N. Y., 549; Laning v. N. Y. C. Ry. Co., 49 N. Y., 521; Brickner v. N. Y. C. Ry. Co., 2 Lans. (N. Y.), 506; S. C., 49 N. Y., 672; Malone v. Chicago, etc., Ry. Co., 52 Ill., 401; Nashville, etc., Ry. Co. v. Carroll, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.), 347; Ford v. Fitchburg Ry. Co., 110 Mass., 241; Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Keary, 3 Ohio St., 201; Mullan v. S. Co., 78 Penn. St., 26.

By reference to these and other cases it will be seen that at least two points in the qualification of this rule may be considered as established: (1) That when a servant is directed by a fellow servant having authority over him, to do an act beyond the scope of his employment, which exposes him to a danger not contemplated in his contract of service and while so doing he is injured without fault of his own; or (2) where a servant is authorized and required by his employment to furnish or provide suitable material or appliances for the work in which his fellow servants are engaged, whether under his special direction or otherwise, and one of them is injured by reason of his neglect or omission in this respect, the common master or employer is responsible in either case.

The evidence in this case shows that the defendant had committed to Cortin the authority to employ, direct and discharge the men in his gang, and had also conferred on him the authority and trusted him to perform the duty of procuring or ordering from its stores of material, a "heater" for the purpose of thawing giant powder in his camp whenever needed. The evidence also tends to show that it was known to the general superintendent and his assistants that it was highly dangerous to thaw giant powder before a fire in this way, where, from the irregular application of the heat, it was liable to soften and [illegible] unequally, and that therefore notice had been given to the local bosses, generally, not to attempt to thaw it in such manner.

It is not clear that this notice ever directly reached Cortin, but it is quite certain that no "heater" was ever seen or used in his camp, and that the powder used there was always thawed before a fire, as on this occasion.

The plaintiff is comparatively an unskilled man from the humbler walks of life, and appears to have been altogether ignorant of the danger incident to thawing giant powder in this manner. And, in fact, it is safe to say, that the occult capacities of this material, when frozen or being thawed, are not well understood by even the scientific world. Am. Cyclo., Explosives.

It is not clear that Cortin had a right, under the circumstances, to order the plaintiff, a common pick and shovel laborer, to assist in thawing powder, even with the aid of an appliance like this "heater;" but to do so without it was clearly wrong, because it subjected him to a serious danger, not within the scope of his employment, and not contemplated in his contract of service. And, for the injury sustained by the plaintiff, by means of this wrongful act of one who, according to the better rule of law, stood, so far, in the place of the defendant, the latter is liable to respond to the former in damages.

Again, the work in which Cortin was engaged involved the use of giant powder for blasting, and as incident to this in that climate, the operation of thawing it when frozen.

The evidence of the defendant tends to show that the handling of this powder, including the thawing of the same, was generally committed, as a sort of personal trust, to the local boss, who was supposed to be selected with some reference to his qualifications therefor; and who might select some persons from the gang to assist him thereabout. In selecting persons for this purpose, as a rule, only those who were willing were thus employed. But, if any one refused, as he might, he was liable to be discharged, and probably would be. A part of the duty of the local boss, in this respect, was to provide the appliance of a "heater" wherein to thaw this powder. In this matter also, he stood in the place of the defendant and the latter is responsible to the plaintiff for the injury caused by his negligence therein.

If Cortin was not aware of this duty in the premises, as he may not have been, he was not qualified for the employment, and if he was aware of it, he willfully disregarded it; and being in either case, so far, the representative of the defendant, it is equally responsible for his conduct, whether attributable to ignorance or willfulness.

On the argument it was further contended by counsel for the defendant that, admitting the plaintiff's theory of the law, as to the local boss being the representative of the defendant, yet while the assistant superintendent was at the camp on the day of the explosion, he superseded such boss as such representative, and that said assistant having then and there noticed Cortin for attempting to thaw powder before the fire, and at the same time gave him an order to remove it, accompanied by a threat that he would discharge him on inspection the next morning, the defendant did its duty in the premises, and is not responsible for the consequences of Cortin's disobedience or neglect to obey its order made through the assistant superintendent.

Granting that the assistant was the representative for the time being of the defendant, he should not have left the camp until he saw the powder removed from the fire and the threatened danger averted, instead of which he went his way, leaving the powder before the fire in charge of Cortin, as before he came. If he had even warned the plaintiff of the danger, it might have been sufficient, but his communication with Cortin appears to have been out of the hearing of the men and only occupied a moment or two as he passed by.

Besides, it is not to be forgotten that on account of the improbability of some material elements of this statement, and the manner of the witness while making it, the jury may well have doubted its correctness and probably did it.

In my judgment the presence and conduct of the assistant did not affect the character of the transaction, so as to change or modify the right of the plaintiff or the liability of the defendant.

If he stood for the defendant while at the camp, he was as guilty then as Cortin was before and afterward, so that instead of relieving the defendant from responsibility for the plaintiff's injury he probably increased it by adding the weight of his negligence to that of the local boss.

The motion for a new trial is denied.

CATARRH

COMPLETE TREATMENT $1.

A single dose of Sanford's Radical Cure instantly relieves the most violent Sneezing or Head Colds, clears the Head as by magic, stops watery discharges from the Nose and Eyes, prevents Ringing Noises in the Head, cures Nervous Headache, and subdues Chills and Fever. In Chronic Catarrh it cleanses the nasal passages of foul mucus, restores the senses of smell, taste and hearing when affected, frees the head, throat and bronchial tubes of offensive matter, sweetens and purifies the breath, stops the cough and arrests the progress of Catarrh towards Consumption.

One bottle Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent and Sanford's Inhaler, all in one package, of all druggists for $1. Ask for SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., Boston.

PILLS

DISORDERED LIVER,
and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office 44 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
